

March 29, 2010

NEW YORK: Unseasonably warm weather hindered normal maple syrup production. Temperatures reached into the high 60's for a few days during the month. Major activities included caring for livestock, spreading manure, grading and packing potatoes, onions, apples and cabbage. Winter meetings and trade shows were well attended.